This workshop will give prospective Principal Investigators an overview of strategies to enhance the quality of proposals submitted to various funding opportunities at the National Science Foundation. Boise State University is hosting this event in collaboration with the National Science Foundation.

Designed to be interactive in nature, this workshop includes activities related to key elements of competitive proposals such as objectives and outcomes, rationale, evaluation and effectively addressing merit review criteria. The workshop will culminate with a session on helpful hints and fatal flaws to consider when developing proposals.
